Hi Dick,

Here is the requested information for the CR 210 plant. I am also working on the information for Havana and Quincy. Below is what I have so far on these two locations and I am waiting to hear back on the type of baghouse at Quincy and the type of central dust collectors if they can find out for me (they are really old). I will send you an e-mail with that information when I hear back, I expect to hear back later today.

CR 210:

This location has a C&W central dust collector that covers the load out area. They also have a baghouse on top of each of the three silos. The each baghouse is a C&W, LPR 6, canister with jet air pulse (all three the same type).

Havana:

This location does not have a baghouse, just a central dust collector that covers the load out and silo fill areas.

Quincy:

This location has one baghouse for the fly ash silo. It also has a central dust collector that covers the load out and silo fill areas.

Please let me know if you have any further questions regarding these facilities. In the future I will try to get as much of this specific information in the application as I can.
