Dust emissions are controlled by the following methods.

Emissions generated during filling silo are controlled by individual C&W CP 305 and emissions generated during the loading of trucks are controlled by CWRA 140 dust collector.

Each CP 305 baghouse contains 8 filter cartridges. The CWRA 140 dust collector contains 12 cartridges.

Mr. Dibble

Per our conversation we are adding Flyash silo to Odessa Plant with baghouse C & W model # CPLPR8 serial # 24081, also dust collector C & W BP serial BP - 790 pulse jet collector. Both units are dedicated for that silo.

Thank You,

Leroy Ludeker

Dear Mr. Ludeker,

As the result of your e-mail below, I will need some further clarification.

You had indicated on the original submitted form (Page 10, Description of Facility, 1st line), the following information regarding the new flyash silo.

I quote from the form:

"Adding flyash silo, the baghouse is C&W model # CPLPR8 Serial # 24081"

If the above unit represents a central baghouse or dust collector at your facility, our emission control unit records for your facility do not reveal the above make and model control device on any of the equipment at the Odessa Plant location.

Point of clarification: Are you trying to say that the information you originally provided should be changed to reflect the information you have provided in your e-mail below?

Please help me to clear up this matter.

I look forward to your reply.

Thank you for your prompt attention to my request and have a great day!

Sincerely yours,

Dickson E. Dibble

Mr. Dibble

When I sent in the paperwork for Odessa plant I thought that we going to tie into the dust collector that was on location. But we are going to add one for that new silo. Here is the information it's C&W BP Series BP -790 pulse jet collector.

I apologize for not having all the information on the form. Thank you very much for your patience.

Thank you,

Leroy Ludeker
