are dry-bottom, washed units manufactured by Combustion Engineering. Each unit currently fires bituminous coal as the primary fuel with a maximum heat input capacity of 6665 MMBtu per hour (760 MW). The applicant proposes a temporary trial burn to fire a blend of subbituminous Powder River Basin coal (PRB) and bituminous coal in existing Units 4 and 5. According to the original power plant site certification, these units were originally designed to fire PRB coal blends. Although a variety of blends may be tested, blends will contain no more than 30% PRB coal by weight. The two coals will be blended off-site and shipped to the plant as a premixed blend. No more than 150,000 tons of PRB coal blends will be delivered and fired during the trial burn. The trial burn will be completed within 90 calendar days of first firing PRB coal.

The applicant indicates that the firing of the proposed PRB coal blends will likely result in carbon monoxide
