Joy:

According to Al's letter this White Construction is out of Clinton, Indiana. (so much for local jobs/business).

However, given the Chiefland company's reputation it could be the same.

As you say; we'll watch.

Hi Al,

For some reason, I cannot open the pdf attachment. Could you send it to me again, or in a different format? I'm concerned about White Construction building anything, especially a facility that could blow up. White Construction's history has proved itself to be quite a questionable one through the years of its existence: bribery, fraud, pay-offs to officials and state workers & road inspectors, groundwater contamination...shall I go on? Luther White, Sr made a lot of money in his time, but the State of Florida continuously had problems with the legality of many of his business activities. If this is the same White Construction of Chiefland, FL that I think it is, perhaps it would be wise for DEP to ask more questions as to the ability of the company to safely carry out building such a facility. The company was, and may still be, prohibited from bidding on road construction projects in Florida.

I am very interested in seeing the contents of that attachment.

I am by no means surprised that the owners of Biomass Gas & Electric would desire to do business with a company such as White Construction. They match. However, we will have lots of evidence and past company history to use in this unfolding scenario.

I'll be out of town on October 14, so cannot attend the meeting, but you can bet I'll be watching to see what happens next.

Thank you,

Joy
